

Stuart MacLean

His passion for occupational health and safety quickly grew as he assumed leadership roles in many of the WCB's operational divisions. It was there where he saw first-hand the impact of workplace injuries and fatalities on workers and their families.

Stuart determined early that with appropriate leadership, focus on best practice, discipline, and collaboration, Nova Scotia could emerge as a leader in workplace safety. In support of that goal, he played a lead role in developing Nova Scotia's prevention strategy, and helped guide a new WCB service model that provides better support for workers and employers. Stuart's efforts to improve health and safety are making a positive difference, and have been recognized nationally, regionally, and locally.

Stuart has a business degree from Acadia University, an Executive MBA from Saint Mary's University, and an ICD designation from Rotman's School of Business. He is the Chair of the Board of the Association Of Workers' Compensation Boards Of Canada, and is an active volunteer in the community, serves as Past-Chair of the Board of Directors for the YMCA of Greater Halifax, and on the Board of Governors for Acadia University. He has also served on the Board of the Canadian Centre for Occupational Health and Safety (CCOHS).
